THE CITY.

Mr. W. H. Willard will move to Durham.

Mr. Farnach will move his jewelry store across the street to the stand owned by Petty & Jones.

R. P. Howell—Merchant Tailor on Fayetteville street—C. M.
Farriss, cutter. Read ad.

A negro jumped jail yesterday, but was caught on the street before he got good running start.

Probabilities for to-day: Clear or fair weather, with Northwest to Westerly winds, and lower temperature.

The Secretary of State is busy shipping county records, books and stationery to the different counties in the State.

Messrs. Scott, Gilmer, J. T. Morehead and Staples of the Greensboro bar, arrived in the city yesterday on attendance at Supreme Court.

Think of it, Mr. J. D. Whitaker offers good round wood delivered at $3.00 per cord. You will find him in rear Citizens' National Bank.

Mr. Scholz, an excellent mechanic with Farnach, has nearly completed a piano made by himself, all done except putting the ivories on, and stringing it up. The man is a genius.

The old fashion of shaking hands, glad to see you, &c., with a remark thrown in about "looking well," is sadly marred, when we remember that either party would stand on his head to get five dollars out of the other if he only knew how.

You can buy anything in the sewing machine line, oils, needles or parts of any kind of the machines manufactured by J. L. Stone, next to J. P. Gully's store, on Fayetteville street. He makes the American Sewing Machine a specialty.

Every variety and quality of furniture to be found at Fraps' warehouses and sample rooms, on the corner of Davis and Fayetteville streets, and opposite the market house. He will sell as low as the lowest.

This evening if the weather be fair the young ladies of the Baptist school will visit the Institution for the deaf and blind and an entertainment of music and singing by the blind will be given them. The time is four o'clock.

She was a very sick woman, had one of her nervous spells, and Dr.
Burke Haywood was sent for. She made a motion to speak, and husband bent his ear down with, "Darling, what is it?" "Henry, don't forget to order me those samples from Stewart's." The whole woman smiled —lavender had revived her.

People will have their habits. An old maiden lady yesterday positively declared it had been her fashion for twenty years to look the house well from top to bottom, and then peep under the bed before she'd blow out the candle, and she hasn't seen a man there yet.

H. H. Reeside, Dancing Master, will give his second grand hop in the main hall, Holleman building, on Thursday evening the 20th inst. The committee will consist of Messrs.
H. H. Reeside, John Whaling, Timothy Keith, J. H. Wicks, D. J. Hobbie, and G. A. Roberts.

We call attention of the law card of Gray & Stamps to be found in this issue. The confidence of the public cannot be more worthily bestowed than upon these two gentlemen who combine every qualification of professional acquirement and the purest of personal character to win the highest point of preferment in their profession.

Hot! all! Everybody hoeing their own row, with occasionally a young man in brass jewelry who ho's for the West! but not the West the old planters ho for, when they want ho's.
It's just the tick of time to see Nick West and get Bolles' Cotton Hoes of Julius Lewis & Co., and about a day and a half after day after to-morrow they will forward and back and promenade all across Crabtree creek, coming to buy Cotton Hoes and hardware of every kind, from that same old firm, Julius Lewis & Co.

DEAD.
Mrs. Beddie Bunn died near Wakefield in this county on 10th inst. She was the widow of James Bunn, and was seventy years of age.

Mr. Parker Rand, one of our oldest citizens, died in this city yesterday at the residence of Mr. A. H. Temple. He was in his eighty-third year. Mr. Rand was a soldier of the war of 1812. He died respected by all who knew him.

A NEGRO KILLS ANOTHER OVER CARDS.

Mr. Lewis Labarb who is just from Reidsville reports that a negro near Leaksville got in a dispute the other night with another negro at the card table and drew a pistol and shot him dead. The murderer went to the woods and a message was sent to Reidsville to warn the authorities to be on the lookout.

DIPHTHERIA AT HICKORY.

A letter received yesterday by Mr.
Ed. Gerock from Rufus Morgan in Hickory, says: "Diphtheria is raging here; six children have died in one family, and in another three are dead and the mother is down sick."

CONVOCATION AT THE GOOD SHEP-

HERD CHURCH TO-MORROW.

At eleven o'clock in the morning, morning prayer and litany, and a sermon by the Rev. J. C. Huske, of Fayetteville. At 7:30 p. m., a paper on the parochial system will be read by the Rev. A. A. Beuton, of Fayetteville, and then, ten minutes discussions on the advantages and disadvantages of the parochial system and how it best can be worked.

On Saturday, morning prayer at 11 a. m., and a sermon by the Rev. M.
H. Vaughn, of Louisville. In the evening at 7:30, papers on the intercity system by the Revs. A. S. Smith of Halifax, and J. E. C. Smedes, of this city, and then discussions on the officiary system.

Sunday: Morning prayer at 11
a. m., and sermon by Bishop Lyman, and celebration of the Holy Communion. At 4 p. m., children's sermon and addresses by the clergy and laity. At 7:30 p. m., a missionary meeting, a paper by Rev. J. C. Huske, and then discussions. All people are invited to attend.

SMITHSBURG, N. C., Jan. 10, 1876.

Dear Sir:—Please send me a bright, smart, intelligent, industrious and kind-hearted girl, without kin, to nurse our baby and do house and wash for a small family. She will have a good blanket and sleep on the floor by the cradle. She may carry the children to Sunday School, to summer and go to visiting once a month, if convenient. We will give her two calico dresses, a hat and a pair of shoes every year, until she is eighteen years of age; and then, if she has no better, and does not wish to marry, we will pay her regular wages, say $2 to $3 a month. Please send her by return mail, and we will relieve your noble institution of one of its burdens.

Respectfully,
SARAH SMITH.

AN OLD MAN FALLS DEAD.

The other day in this county Mr.
Joseph Marshall started to feed his hogs when he fell out of the door, and his wife caught him—but life gone—he was dead. It is thought he died of heart disease. Mr. Marshall was sixty-five.

INFORMATION WANTED.

A gentleman was in the city yesterday looking for a commissioner of deeds for the State of South Carolina.
If there be any such officer here he will confer a favor by reporting the fact at this office.

THE GENTLE SEX.

Girls wish they were boys until they like some boy and feel contented.

Mrs. Secretary Fish wears peacock green silk, flounced with black Brussels lace.

"A Reading, Pa.," girl has knit a pair of stockings from her own hair.
—Exchange. Isn't that a pretty thing yarn?

The grave of Mrs. Rebecca Bradley, who was buried eight years ago, at Gastonia, was recently opened, in order, it is thought, to rob the corpse of a set of false teeth.

He lives in Sparta, N. C. He believed the vast display of striped stockings, and then murmured to himself: "I've got 'em sure this time."
"Got what?" she inquired.
"Got the delirium tremens. I'm seeing an angel, and he says I've just seen a zebra." She turned down the lamp, and the Menagerie closed.

Mrs. Burlington was misled by her family, in Lansingburg, New York, and after an absence of three days, was found in a room of an otherwise unoccupied house. She was standing in a corner, and begged to be let alone to stay there, declaring that the Lord and the devil had commanded her to stand immovable until she died. She had nearly overlaid the latter word in way of humor, and the fatigue of the position had almost killed her.

A Northern girl's opinion of Southern girls: You can tell a Southern girl at once—She is rounder than her Northern sisters, indeed she is never thin or lank; she walks with a languid step, and her movements are slow and indolent; she is never alert.
She has fine soft eyes with a serene expression, very different from the keen, keen eyes of the North; she has not the beautiful red and white complexion of New York and New England, rather she is sallow, with a few rose tints; you might call her cream color, she never looks as if she were from all kinds of things, she does not think she can help matters by her advice or interference, but sits back calmly and leaves everything to her brother, or "her," professionally turned to goshawk, "Have you one Sweet Kiss Before We Part?" That Cedar Rapids clerk looked up and down the store; the book-keeper was out; the boss was mournful; the Western Division of the Carolina Central Railroad.
The effect of railroads. Charlotte Observer: On Wednesday last we saw at Wooten's Express office in this city, eighteen quarters of fine Mountain beef, being a shipment from the State of Wisconsin to Wilmington, N. C. The shippers, we presume, realize about twice as much for beef and other produce shipped by rail as they did by stage and as they did before the building of the Statesville Railroad and the Carolina Central Railroad. A friend informs us that a farmer in Wilkes county in this city four beavers for $100 each. Again we say, so much for the building of Railroads.

Operation on a lady's eye. Monroe Enquirer: Dr. T. W. Bickett, assisted by Drs. W. C. Ramsey and H. Smith, performed a successful operation on the eye of Rebecca Trull (blind) at the poor house on last Wednesday, which involved a knowledge of anatomy and tact in the use of the knife very creditable to our Physicians. It consisted in the enucleation or extirpation of the entire globe of an eye, leaving the delicate muscles, &c., intact, so that an artificial ball new made in two weeks, and set in return to to-day like another man. I advise the afflicted, far and near, no matter what their disease is, or how others have failed, to apply to Dr. Jones. No man could have been worse than myself and live at all, before I went to this great physician.

Frifield, Marion Co., S. C.
Dr. Jones will continue to cure the afflicted at the Humphrey, House, Goldboro, N. C., until 2nd of February.

"briefs" it thus:

tween virtue and vice, has been appointed pension agent at Raleigh.
This is Radical reform.

THE TEMPERANCE YOUNG MEN in Wilmington don't drink, but they are lighting in a ball room.

Some people never look up to Heaven till God in His Providence lays them on their backs.

At a leap year ball Tuesday night in Wilmington a bouquet was presented to the young man the girls flew around most.

Star spangled stockings are the coming Centennial sensation. "Oh, sue, can you see, by the dawn's early light?"

The lower lip first shows signs of intoxication. It is the lower lip which first shows signs of grief in a baby.

Antoni Rush is rushing about Wilmington with a four ounce egg his old speckled hen laid. He is in no rush for a notice, but then—the hen —you know.

The Milwaukee Commercial Times says, hysterically: "Can anything excite more patience and intelligence of a night driver?" Yes; a dominie hen on a china egg.

Two hundred Indiana Journalists, accompanied by sixty ladies, arrived in the city on Saturday night and are at the Colonnade Hotel.—Philadelphia Times.—Good Gracious!

Courier Journal: There was a hard-up man in town the other day trying to sell, as a valuable relic, a three cent postage stamp which he declared was from one of Paul's letters to the Corinthians.

Courier Journal: "Why," asks an exchange, "do they bury a Japanese with his head downward when he dies?" We really don't know, unless it is because they think that's the only proper time to do it.

Messrs. Sampson & McCarty have recently sold "Leary farm," a beautiful country, containing thirty-six acres, to E. Eggleston for $800 cash.
Also, a thirty-two lot in Marx's addition to J. H. Williams for $100 cash.
—Richmond Dispatch.

A lucrative business now is said to be the manufacture of bogus five-cent pieces. The New York Herald says:
"A counterfeit of the United States $50, and the pouches can be bought at any machine shop. The rest of the machinery is very simple."

Here is an item of "society gossip" from the Indianapolis Sentinel: "The way some of the grangers waltzed their gaily dressed girls up to the bar last night, containing thirty-six acres, to E. Eggleston for $800 cash.
Also, a thirty-two lot in Marx's addition to J. H. Williams for $100 cash.
—Richmond Dispatch.

There are now eight pin factories in the United States, which make 47,000,000 pins daily, in addition to these the importations of pins reach about 100,000 daily. As these are all sold, it is safe to say that 72-000,000 of pins are lost daily, or 50,000 every minute. Where they all go is the wonder.

It is rumored that some enterprising gentleman or gentlemen, are about to commence in this city the publication of a weekly illustrated journal. The experiment was attempted in Chicago a few years since, and at a loss of $150,000 in less than half a year. We wish the Baltimore enterprise better fortune.—Baltimore

Burlington Hawkeye: A sweet young girl went into a Cedar Rapids store, and asked the clerk, inquiringly, if he had "A Heart that Loves Me Only?" "No," he said, "but here's 'A Heart to Thee, Mary.'" That wouldn't do, but she turned to go back, and then saw "One Sweet Kiss Before We Part!" That Cedar Rapids clerk
looked up and down the store; the
book-keeper was out; the boss was mournful; the Western Division of the Carolina Central Railroad.

Shipping a live boy. Charlotte Observer: A little chap arrived in this city Sunday morning, bound for the Western part of the State. He was from and where he was going.
So they just put him on the train and let him go. He was taken care of, by one party, and then by another until he landed safely here.
He spent Sunday at the Central Hotel, where he was an object of a good deal of interest, and left early Monday on the Western Division of the Carolina Central Railroad.

THE DAILY NEWS

The Official Organ of the City.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 2, 1876.

JOHN D. CAMERON, Editor.

"THE DAILY NEWS is the Only Paper in the City of Raleigh That Takes the Telegraphic Reports."

OUR TERMS:

ADVERTISING RATES.—Per square (ten lines, nonpareil) first insertion $1.00; each subsequent insertion 50 cts. Contracts for advertisements of any space or time can be made at the counting-room of the NEWS OFFICE.

CONTRACTORS will positively not be allowed to exceed their space, or advertise other than the legitimate business, except by paying specially for the same.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.—Daily, one year, $5.00; six months $3.00. Weekly, one year, $1.00; six months, 75 cts. Invariably in advance.

Notice to Correspondents.

No letter can be published in these columns which is not authenticated by the name of its author. This we require, not for publication, but as a guarantee of the good faith of correspondents. Persons who violate this rule will have their communications consigned to the waste-basket.

The subscription list of the DAILY NEWS is larger than that of any other daily in the State, and more than double that of any other daily in Raleigh. Advertisers should make a note of this.

Mr. McFarland, of Tennessee, has introduced a bill to allow planters to sell leaf tobacco without license. The bill ought to pass as removing a tyrannical restriction upon private rights. Raw material in the hands of the producer ought never to be the subject of tax or excise.

Mr. Beck's election to the Senate from Kentucky will be accepted by the country as more than a compensation for his withdrawal from the House. He served in the House of Representatives for eight years, and to his fearlessness, uprightness and parliamentary ability the downfall of the party in power is much owing as to any other man. That party could not live after it was exposed, and Mr. Beck was untiring in stripping it of its covering.

The Senate is fast regaining its former dignity of character.

Mr. Vance is moving for the improvement of the French Broad river, and we hope his bill will become a law. The French Broad is one of the many large tributaries of the Tennessee river. If the latter is improved as undertaken, then that of the French Broad ought to follow as a necessary consequence. It might be made navigable forty miles south of Asheville with a deep, full stream. This would open the mountain region of North Carolina to the system of navigation which connects throughout the whole west.

Mr. Scales has introduced a bill granting pensions to soldiers of the Mexican war. We hope he will be able to convince the Congress of the shameful neglect and base ingratitude that has been shown to the men who added so much magnificent territory to the United States, and whose valor inspired such sincere respect for America throughout the world.

Most of them were Southern soldiers, and that has been the cause of their neglect. But no participation in the civil war cancelled the obligations of the nation. The term "rebel" is a very convenient one, when money is to be saved, or bad feeling gratified. But it points no argument, and satisfies no justice.

And this is the way they do it. The model Republican State of South Carolina: Mr. Hoge, of the 3rd Congressional District, represents under his certificate of election a district composed of seven counties. These counties by law are required to be contiguous, even though they may be run out to the length of "shoe-string" districts by expert gerrymandering. But the supply Legislature of South Carolina, to make the election of a Republican certain against all contingencies, gave the 3rd District a strong republican county, twenty-five miles distant from the next nearest county—set down in the midst of other territory like one of the little German principalities we used to see in the old maps of Europe, a little island in a waste of hostility. Mr. Hoge is therefore brought to investigation by the committee on Privileges and Elections. Nothing will be effected except to vindicate the laws of the United States, requiring the districts all to be composed of contiguous counties—and farther—to show how contemptuously those laws are treated by a State under the control of a party determined to rule or ruin.

A LOST OPPORTUNITY.

Ex-Gov. Holden was near being canonized on the rolls of martyrdom. Never was there a man in our history who turned his back to the light of the crimes that cost him his official head. Never was there a man to whom set so powerful a current of party sympathy. Even the punishment visited upon him by an outraged people for the violation of their most sacred rights, as time had rolled on, began to arouse commiseration, as if justice had been more than satisfied and offended law had had more than its vindication. Tenderness took the place of resentment. And because there had been a marked external change in the conduct of the notorious ex-official, and because it was believed that his influences had purified his own heart, and dispelled the cherished sentiment of revenge which naturally enough he might have entertained, there were many who thought that as the law had been satisfied in the letter, its spirit might be equally satisfied by mitigation of the penalties and reversal of its sentence.

That effort failed, not from party feeling, but because that stern spirit which had met and overthrown domestic tyranny was above the reach of sentimentalism. It meant that its decrees should be irreversible, that no future imitator of Gov. Holden might rely upon that facility of temper or policy which shapes itself to the fluctuations of popular caprice. And so the judgment of the Court of Impeachment stands, some of his own party friends voting in Convention against the removal of his disabilities, as others of them did in the Court of Impeachment for his conviction.

And now ex-Gov. Holden shows by his letter that he was unworthy of the effort to relieve him. He shows that he was rightly deposed from his office, because, now, in the full light of experience, and with a perfect sense, that as the passions of the past have greatly subsided, and the principles of constitutional law again assert themselves, his acts as Governor could only find palliation under the influences of the hour. He defends his acts and stubbornly asserts that he acted under the authority of the Constitution and the law. Time has not changed his views, and evidently those other influences have not softened his heart. His cry is for vengeance. The punishment meted out to him, he calls down upon others. The miseries he has drawn upon himself, he will have perpetuated upon his native land. Peace and harmony for the nation he would destroy, because he disqualified himself for their equal enjoyment.

His friends will regret that he has put himself in a position so unlooked for from his department for the last few years. Those who choose to call his enemies are now more than ever convinced, not only of the justice, but the necessity of repressing a man who uses the last strength of the liberty that is left him to expend it upon the destruction of that peace which might be considered nearly secured. And he will now go down with the consciousness that he has unveiled his true character, and will sink without an arm stretched out him to save.

Gen'l Gordon and Col. Waddell will not be thrown off the track by the opposition of Blaine and others. Both of these gentlemen are sincere in their allegiance to the Union and in their anxieties for perfect harmony. Both regard the Centennial celebration as one of the strongest agencies to cement the growing spirit of conciliation, and both of them urge the appropriation now asked from Congress.

The bad blood roused by Blaine's arraignment of Southern barbarities and his impudent claim for the humanity of the North cannot subside at once. It is hard to separate the voice of the mere politician from the sentiments of the section he represents. And it is true that Blaine does speak for an element unfortunately too great for the good of the country. Yet it is certain that Blaine only speaks in one character, that of the Presidential aspirant, and it is equally certain that his speeches have killed them off.

The people, notwithstanding Blaine and the Republican press, will not be easily roused to play again into the hands of ambitious politicians. Delays are always dangerous in matters pertaining to health as well as other interests. A slight cold excites no alarm; perhaps it will get well of itself if let alone, possibly it may, but perhaps it will not. A bottle of the celebrated Home Stomach Bitters is a sure fortification against the attacks of this insidious and universal foe.

RESPECT TO THE MEMORY OF THE HON. W. A. GRAHAM.

The Legislature of Virginia, now in session, has unanimously adopted the following resolutions, which form an appropriate tribute to one who, at the very time of his death, was engaged in the public service of the State of Virginia, a service imposed upon him through the influence of the talent, learning and weight of character of the distinguished gentleman:

Resolved, That the General Assembly be informed of the death of the Hon. William A. Graham, a citizen of the State of North Carolina, one of the arbiters selected to determine the boundary line between this State and the State of Maryland, whilst in the discharge of his duties in that behalf; therefore, be it Resolved, That the General Assembly of Virginia take the occasion to express the profound sympathy at the death of this distinguished citizen of our sister State. Mr. Graham was universally respected for his virtues and distinguished by great abilities, high culture and long and eminent services in numerous legislative, State and national. Virginia feels that a character so pure and illustrious deserves such a tribute as is only rendered to the good and the great.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16, 1876. With the adjournment on Friday the House of Representatives reached the close of the angry debate on Amnesty. It will be a memorable debate in our annals, and in the history that we have recently made the conspicuous event will be that at this time the South made its first and signal display of self-assertion—a self-assertion well supplemented by an ardent expression of broad national sentiment. The country has been taught the lesson that there is no incompatibility between the vindication of Southern manhood, and the existence in the Southern mind of the strongest national debate. This was indeed the great lesson of the GREAT SPEECH OF MR. HILL.

I called upon Mr. Hill last evening with the view of learning his own estimate of the spirit of his speech, as well as of its effect upon the country. "Perhaps," said Mr. Hill, "you will find the best evidence of its effect upon the country there," pointing to a pile of more than fifty letters upon his mantel-piece, "these letters constitute the bulk of my mail this evening, and you will oblige me by reading a few of them." I read perhaps a dozen or more from different sections of the Union, and it was quite remarkable to see the unanimity of approval of the sentiment of his speech. Many of these letters were from Union soldiers, and the two that impressed me most were letters from Federal soldiers, one in Illinois and the other in Massachusetts. There were letters of congratulation to Mr. Hill upon his complete and irrefutable statement in behalf of the humanity of the South, and of gratitude for the fervent Unionism of his peroration. The burden of the letters that I saw was that if the South had not vindicated itself against Blaine's vile charges which he made,—"be it remembered in the foulest language,"—"her people were united to be associated with those who were proud to esteem themselves worthy citizens of a free country."

A PHILADELPHIA LADY writing to Mr. Hill, sends him a flag as an expression of her appreciation of his "eloquence and patriotism," and signs herself, "Your Yank-Sister."

OPINIONS OF DEMOCRATIC LEADERS.

"Now," said Mr. Hill to your correspondent, "you can read the rest if you choose; but they are all in the same line." Mr. Hill said further that he was receiving complimentary messages from all over the North, and that he was receiving the most gratifying assurance of the future effect of the speech from prominent Northern Democrats in and out of Congress. It would hardly be decorous to repeat the names of these gentlemen which Mr. Hill gave me in many instances with their exact language in characterizing the speech, but they are names such as the Democracy of the nation everywhere accept as the symbols of all that is devotion to principle, and discretion in council. Twenty thousand copies of the speech have been ordered by the Democrats for circulation at the North. "By the way," said Mr. Hill, as I was leaving his room, "General Leach of North Carolina suggested a sensible thing when he said that my speech and Gen. Banks' great plea for national sentiment should be published together. The country can then see how perfectly in accord the real Union sentiment of the North and the South is upon all those gentlemen that have divided the country."

JUDGE KELLEY AND GEN. BANKS.

These two gentlemen have endeavored themselves to the whole country by the noble stand they have taken in this heated debate. Judge Kelley, who has signalized his fairness to the South by numerous instances of magnanimity within the past five years, was prompt to put himself on the side of philanthropy and justice. He made an earnest plea for amnesty—universal and absolute, on the first day of the debate; and he has won universal favor with the galleries and with the Democratic side of the House. The better class of journalists, too, some of whom have not always been just to Judge Kelley, because of his views upon financial questions, are now his friends, save those who are swayed by the violent partisan tone of the newspapers they represent here. Gen. Banks has also covered himself with glory. His speech was upon the highest plane of statesmanlike and patriotic discussion, and commanded unimpaired admiration save from the hyena coterie among the Republicans that constitute Mr. Blaine's following. The Democrats flung to Banks' side when he had finished, and were profuse in expressions of gratitude for his effort. A leading Southern Democrat said to him: "General Banks, upon such a platform as that speech we can carry the country after the manner of a whirlwind."

At least one gratifying issue of the discussions of the week is the absolute discomfiture of Blaine as a Presidential candidate, and the loss of his stolen laurels as a great debater. The effect upon his Presidential fortunes is seen in Morton's triumph over him in carrying the Republican Nominating Convention to Cincinnati. Blaine wanted the Convention held in an eastern city, and he is said to indulge in bitter denunciations of Morton and his friends for their "unfair tactics," as he alleges towards him. Judicious Republicans tell me that Blaine has destroyed himself, and that the party by placing both in the attitude of hostility to amnesty and to the final tranquilization of the country. As a debater Blaine is no match for Hill, and he virtually confessed the superiority of the latter by asking him questions and then refusing to let Hill answer them. "Oh, dry up Blaine, everybody is tired of you" was Sunset Cox's pithy summary of that sentiment of the House and the country as to the outcome that has just fallen to the noisy Maine demagogue, who for six years sat in the Speaker's chair, having nearly all the time a two-thirds majority to sustain him, and thus advantageously situated, with the aid of much parliamentary experience, and an unblushing audacity that knows no sense of shame, has cheated the country into regarding him as being a dextrous party leader and as approaching very closely the pedestal of statesmanship.

Said Col. Waddell, at the close of the debate on Friday to a group of brother members: "Jim Blaine has proven himself just what I always considered him, a cross-road politician and he is by no means of the highest type of that class."

NORTH CAROLINA HAS SHARED THE HONOR of this eventful week. Col. Waddell's fine address has given great satisfaction to his friends. Perhaps that forcible, graceful and persuasive speaker never appeared to better advantage than in pronouncing his eulogy upon Andrew Johnson. His voice was full and resonant, more so than I ever knew it to be before, and his manner was up to the best oratorical standard. Col. Waddell commanded the rapt attention of the House and galleries, and has been the recipient of many most flattering compliments. His popularity is universal and his numerous friends were more than satisfied with his effort. Major Robbins was to have been heard from in the Amnesty debate last week, but in the sequel, he had not the opportunity which he would have improved of illustrating North Carolina by an able speech. Major Robbins is a strong man in the opinion of his associates in Congress.

IN THE SENATE.

Nothing of moment has occurred, and Senators of both parties have spent much of their time on the floor of the House during the exciting debate of the past week. Morton, however, will soon call up his "bloody-shirt" resolutions, and we are promised an angry debate in the Senate, if the "Chief of the Scalp-Takers" can produce it by taunts, and meacres and falsehoods. Morton seeks the Southern Republican support, and the way to the heart of the carpet-bagger and the scallawag, next to giving them a chance to plunder, is through censure of the Southern people.

A SAMPLE NEW YEAR RESOLUTION.—CHAPTER I.—It was New Year's morning. He had been thinking deeply for a day or two, and there was a Spartan look on his face as he sat down to breakfast. He was unusually quiet, though he said he never felt better in his life.

Chapter II.—Rising from the table he drew forth his tobacco box and said to his wife:

"Hannah, I'm going to quit the weed."

"No!" "Yes, I am. I've been a slave to the disgusting habit for forty years, but now I am done with it! Come here, Hannah!" She followed him to the door, and he flung the box far out into the back-yard.

Chapter III.—Four days have passed. Dried pumpkin, cloves, spices, gum and dried beef had been chewed in place of the accustomed food. The family cat had been kicked out of doors; every peddler in town came to the door.

"But you will stick to your resolution, won't you?" asked the wife. "I will or die!" he replied.

Chapter Last.—'Twas dark. Man squaked around the house—on his knees on the grass—pawed around—fingers clutched an object—lid flew open—moved his right hand to his mouth—"Yum, yum! But what a fool I was!" Moral.—Don't chew.—Detroit Free Press.

TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

THE DAILY NEWS IN THE ONLY PAPER IN RALEIGH THAT TAKES THE TELEGRAPHIC REPORTS AND IN THE ONLY ONE THAT FURNISHES THE LATEST NEWS AND MARKET REPORTS.

NOON DISPATCHES.

English Financial Matters - The Banks Hold to Present State of Discount.

LONDON, Jan. 19. - It has been generally supposed during the week that the bank rate of discount would be reduced to 4 per cent. To-day, however, the impression prevails that any reduction from the present rate of 5 per cent is improbable.

The Times this morning in its financial article says the demand for money is very quiet at the bank and there is but little doing outside. All suitable gold arriving in the country is taken for export and there is little probability of any expected arrivals going into the bank as all foreign exchanges are adverse and bills in demand.

Another Deed of Thomasen Discovers. Other Foreign Items.

LONDON, Jan. 19. - The police have discovered a deed of Thomasen, the author of the Bremerhaven crime, settled a ship in 1886 on which he had 24,000 pounds sterling of insurance.

The Post's Berlin special says the Archbishop of Cologne has refused in Holland.

The Times Paris correspondent says in most of the departments, the Bonapartists refuse alliance with other parties. They stand alone. The Conservatives have carried fifty out of sixty departments reported.

Spanish Affairs - A Carlist Leader - Arrangers - Spain at the Centennial.

MADRID, Jan. 19. - The following is official: "The Carlist leader, Triunfo, yesterday, after the Spanish consul at Barcelona, France, of his unreserved submission to King Alfonso, Gen. Martinez Cana's army is concentrated in the neighborhood of Pamplona."

Five hundred and fifteen packages will be shipped from Cadix on the 31st inst., for the Centennial exhibition at Philadelphia.

Religious Excitement in Spain.

LONDON, Jan. 19. - The Madrid correspondent of the Standard says the Bonapartist electoral excitement is increasing. The archbishop and the bishops signed a petition to the King for religious unity and the pastors advise the people to vote for the Bonapartists who support it. The British cabinet resolved to give general support to Andrey's note.

MIDNIGHT DISPATCHES.

CONGRESSIONAL.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. - Senate. Sherman presented a petition of citizens of Ohio asking construction of the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Bills were introduced by Conover for a uniform duty on sugar. Wallace presented petitions from citizens of Pennsylvania for congressional aid for the construction of the Southern Pacific road.

The bill amending the charter of the Freedman's bank was passed. Davis' Treasury bill was discussed but laid aside for Morton, who commenced his Mississippi investigation resolution speech. Before its conclusion the Senate went into executive session. Adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. - House. Preliminary business unimportant. Several speeches on the Centennial were made, only 2 in opposition. Mr. Cochran of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Tucker of Virginia, both on constitutional grounds. Mr. Tucker's speech was said to be the finest effort of the session.

Begun of Texas spoke in favor of it. Without reaching a vote the House adjourned.

Domestic Miscellany.

Two hundred men had gathered at Massillon, O., to Lynch Mr. Richardson, from his partner telling him the best route to South America. Tappan when arrested had two bottles of poison.

Leopold Newman a broker of New York who recently shot himself is dead, and John R. Newman a boat builder who was not by highwaymen is also dead.

The Bay View Hotel, a number of cars, and three locomotives were burned yesterday at Canasie, L. I. Loss $50,000.

The U. S. Steamer Marion was leaving Portsmouth, N. H., for Norfolk dragged her anchor, and is ashore on Pumpkin Island opposite the Navy Yard. She is badly damaged.

Extract from Mr. Tucker's Speech in Opposition to the Centennial Appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. - In the further course of his remarks, speaking of George Washington, he remarked that George Washington was the first great rebel in the country, and he ventured to say to the gentleman from Ohio, Garfield, no spoke of the day about perjury, that George Washington was in the view of the law, a perjured rebel, and was an officer in His Majesty's army, and he (Tucker) was for Crown, and then went into rebellion.

Garfield: "Did he hold a commission in the British army at the time of the revolution?"

Tucker: "No Sir."

Garfield: "Then I think he did not commit perjury."

Tucker: "Then you claim that his oath was only just so long as he held his commission."

Garfield: "It ceased when his commission expired."

Tucker: But he resigned.

Garfield: He did not resign.

Tucker: He did resign.

Garfield: He was not an officer at the time.

Tucker: Why, the gentleman does not know the history of his own country. (Laughter.)

Garfield: Did he resign to take service against the crown?

Tucker: Oh! no, that is another thing.

Garfield: He was trying to get service in Great Britain before the war was over.

Tucker: He resigned and then he took service in the crown. When the gentleman was speaking of me of the South the other day, he spoke of those who resigned and afterwards took service of the crown.

Garfield: He did not speak of those who, having resigned, took service, but I spoke of those who, being still under their oath, contemptuously violated it.

Tucker: If you had so qualified your phraseology, I should not have interrupted you the other day, for I know of no such person. The reason I interrupted was because the other day I thought that I represent on this floor a district and a little town where sleep the remains of one of the noblest Americans who ever trod this soil.

Garfield: He sleeps in death and dishonor can ever by implication or expression be thrown on that honorable man, that the representative of that district should not rise here and repeat. (Sensation and some applause.)

Alabama State Debt - Labors of the Commissioners.

MONTGOMERY, Jan. 19. - Governor Houston, Levi W. Lawler and T. B. Bethea, commissioners to adjust and settle the Alabama State debt, in their report to the Legislature in a few days. The result of their labors will be, if confirmed by the Legislature, to fix the entire indebtedness of the State at about ten million of dollars.

John R. Dussapens, of New York, has been in this city several weeks as counsel for a large number of direct and indirect bondholders, and after making thorough examination into the resources and financial condition of the State, has reported the proposition of commissioners with that decided and bold figure.

The government of the State in the hands of an honest, respected and economical administration, and such a Constitution which forever excludes the borrowing of money or lending State aid to internal improvements or other schemes, Alabama will once more resume her position in the Union.

The House Representatives adopted a memorial to the United States Senate to enquire into the rights of Geo. E. Spear in that body, and the Senate adopted the memorial several days ago. It will be forwarded to Washington at once.

Washington Items.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. - The Secretary of War has returned.

The appropriation committee agreed to reduce the appropriation for France and Russia from $17,000,000 to $14,000,000 missions to $9,000,000 to $8,750,000. The mission to Greece is abolished.

Mr. Morton read his Mississippi speech, showing he took unusual pains with it. He usually speaks extempore.

CONFIRMATION. - The confirmation, Whitfield, Attorney for Northern Mississippi, six Consuls, Sibley, Post Master Huntsville, Ala., Fitzhugh, Natchez, Miss. It was thought the Judiciary would report Billings for District Judge of Louisiana at its first hearing in Executive session, but action on Whitfield's case shows this was a mistake.

Meeting of Expressmen.

BOSTON, Jan. 19. - One hundred and two delegates are in attendance upon the Expressmen's Mutual Benefit Association. The membership is 3,228. The receipts for the year are $92,719; expenditures $91,574. In seven years $2,949 were paid on claims for benefits.

Philadelphia Times. DR. HELMBOCK'S PLEA.

His Attempt to Regain His Liberty - Evidence in Favor of the Doctor's Insanity.

In the old Court House on Saturday, before Judge Briggs, in the case of Dr. Henry T. Helmbock, continuing hearing on habeas corpus, asking to be released from the Pennsylvania Hospital for the Insane, Peter Van Shock a druggist, testified that he had seen the doctor since his incarceration; that he had complained of not being allowed to see counsel, and considered that the parties in authority there had abused him in intercepting letters to his friends. The witness considered the doctor to be of sound mind. Mr. George H. Ash-ton, of the Evening Chronicle, testified that he saw the doctor before his last incarceration, and considered him to be a sane person; he had always a peculiar way of clapping his hands, just like he did on the previous Saturday when he got off a good joke; would have no hesitation in transacting business with him. James Chambers of The Day, testified that he had known the doctor for fifteen years; consider him to be just as sound now as ever he was; never saw anything wrong in him except that he would occasionally be under the influence of too much wine. J. Dill Stokes, clerk of the St. Stephen's Hotel testified that the doctor had boarded in his room at the hotel prior to his incarceration in the asylum; he considered him to be of sound mind; the doctor's bill proper for board was $55; the doctor's bill for board was $55; the doctor's bill for board was $55.
